

National Museums Scotland

offers a stunning collection of museums for all types of events and entertaining all of which ensure an unforgettable experience.

"History on a plate" best describes the ethos of the entertaining in these exclusive venues. Whether the requirements are "big & bold" or "small & beautiful" we have a venue to suit you.

National Museum of Scotland presents Scotland's history from its beginnings to the twentieth century. Located in the city centre we can host receptions up to 700 guests, dinners up to 120 guests in one gallery or up to 300 guests in several galleries, and more intimate events in our Boardrooms with their fabulous views of Edinburgh Castle.

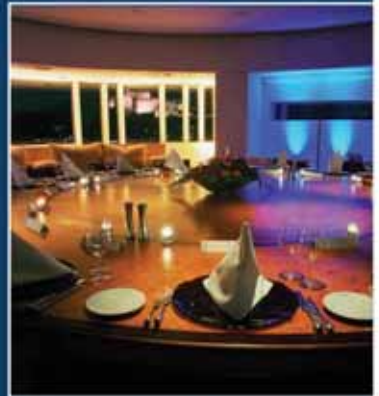

Private tours of our collections – Scotland: past, present and future - can be arranged in conjunction with your reception or dinner.

National Museum of Flight, a few miles east of Edinburgh, boasts The Concorde Experience where guests can enjoy boarding the iconic aircraft, dine under the wings, and experience the lifestyle once the exclusive preserve of the rich and famous.

The Royal Museum, part of the National Museum of Scotland, will reopen in 2011 after undergoing a £46m refurbishment project.

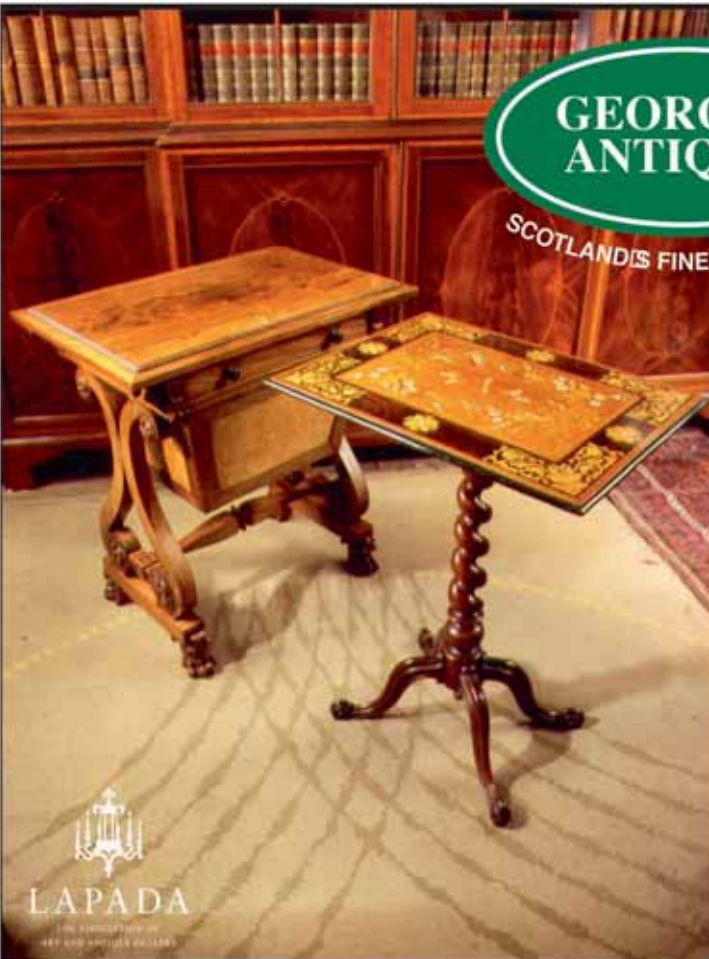

A whole new floor at street level with better visitor facilities, 16 new galleries, and wonderful new venue spaces for private events will be available.

SCOTLAND'S FINEST FURNITURE

Located in a former whisky bond in historic Leith, Edinburgh, we are Scotland's leading antique dealers. We carry an extensive range of quality antiques over five floors, including fine Georgian, Victorian and Edwardian furniture, gilt mirrors, large dining tables and sets of chairs as well as small decorative items and objets d'art.

We offer a personal approach for both the business or private buyer, and as Lapada members we offer friendly advice while working to ensure you find the item of your choice to suit your taste or budget, along with efficient after-sales service.
