Hills Motors was established in 1978 by Geoff Hills as a Citroën specialist mechanical workshop. In later years Geoff's son Matthew joined the company and expanded it to include Peugeot and Renault. Today we have a small but expert team, with experience encompassing vehicles from 1927 to the present day!

All of our technicians are highly qualified and have extensive experience in main dealerships as well as in our independent workshop. We are able to provide the service you would expect from a main dealer - with a reduced cost and the added advantage of being able to speak to the people who actually worked on your vehicle.

We have been conscientiously building our reputation as the premier place to come for your French car needs. We use genuine parts as well as high quality aftermarket components made to original equipment specifications. We are proud to provide a customer friendly service at a competitive price.

As the industry has become more specialised - making it essential to invest in computer systems for highly technical diagnostic tasks - we have regularly kept up with technology. This allows us to carry out all aspects of diagnostic repairs for Citroën, Peugeot and Renault. We also carry out key coding, ABS and engine fault reading. All cars leave hand washed and a valet can be booked on request.

In November 2007 we joined the Alliance Autocentre as part of a nationwide code of practice. The aims of Alliance Autocentre go way beyond basic standards to encompass regular training, a code of practice and assistance, making us compliant in all aspects of maintaining our position as Medway's premier French vehicle specialist.
