

SHAPING MERSEYSIDE'S FUTURE

At Mott MacDonald we provide consultation and market research, transport planning, highways design and engineering, socio-economic research and crime analysis together with mapping and geographical information systems (GIS) to both public and private sector organisations in Greater Merseyside. We pride ourselves in the quality of service that we provide to aid the decision making processes of our clients.

Our presence in Merseyside extends back to the construction of the Queensway Tunnel, opened in 1934. We are committed to improving infrastructure and services for the benefit of local communities and future generations.

We are leading on both the Liverpool City region and Liverpool City traffic models, as well as supporting the Local Transport Plan Support Unit with research and evaluation activity. We have successfully delivered the Merseyside Information Service contract since 2002 by collecting information and providing research and analysis to support planning and housing, economic and safer community strategies across the Liverpool City region.
