

Access by design

Ticking all the boxes...

Hampshire-based Wessex Lifts have been making buildings accessible for over 30 years.

Part of the Ratcliff Group, Wessex Lifts is among the country's leading designers and manufacturers of hydraulic lifting platforms for the disabled.

Thanks to a large range of lifting products – travelling up to 5.3m – Wessex provides quality access solutions for the variety of problems caused by steps, or changes of level.

At their main manufacturing base in Romsey, Wessex engineers design a full range of low rise lifting platforms to cater for every requirement. Whether it is for a standard 'off-the-shelf' lift, when budget and cost is the driving requirement, or for that one-off 'something special' to complement the building environment, Wessex Lifts are there with practical designs to help you find the perfect solution.

Designed for use in public buildings, the Wessex enclosed Liberty Lift meets all of the standards, directives and Part M of the Building Regulations – it ticks all of the boxes.

The standard Liberty Lift package has a lifting capacity of 400kg and travels to a maximum of 3m finished floor to finished floor. It comes with twin automatic doors, and allows for through access, same side access and adjacent access; glazed panels and battery backed facilities complete the package.

To complement the enclosed lifting platform, Wessex has designed a wide range of Steplifts. Within public buildings, steps and changes of level up to one metre can be difficult problems to solve. With the Wessex range of Steplifts, building managers can find the solution to every problem. The flagship of the Wessex Steplift range is the LR, and as with the enclosed Liberty Lift, the LR complies with all the standards and ticks all the boxes.

The standard LR package has a lifting capacity of 300kg and travels to a maximum of 1m finished floor to finished floor. The LR range comes as through access and in two platform widths – 800mm and 900mm. The range is finished as
